Mr. Brae, KC, prosecutor for the defence department, objected to the release of the accused on bail. He said that "great publicity has been given the government's investigation. On the contrary, those charged with conducting the inquiry were constantly accused of keeping the public in the dark."

He denied that "great publicity has been given the government's investigation. On the contrary, those charged with conducting the inquiry were constantly accused of keeping the public in the dark."

To Perform Here

Noted Concert Pianist
Plays "Boogie-Woogie"
Only Once-In-A-While

William Kapell, New York pianist, is a celebrated concert artist at 23, but it is 15 years since he first ran his talented fingers over the ivory keys.

BUT DESPITE his hundreds of recitals before the most discerning audiences he candidly admits that:

"I always get nervous before a performance."

Kapell is in Edmonton for a special Friday night in the Empire Theatre under the auspices of the Women's Musical Club of Edmonton.

INTERVIEWED at the MacDonald hotel, the famed artist said reporters he is the only musician in the Kapell family. His father operates a bookstore in New York City and a younger brother of 19 is with the United States Navy in Tokyo waters.

From the first time he sat down to a piano as a youngster of 10, he became "violently afflicted with a love for the instrument," he declared.

His preference is for the romantics over modern music, but this is more or less a recent conversion, he admits.

THE YOUNG ARTIST seemed anxious to dispel popular fancy that he is fond of boogie-woogie and jazz.

"I like playing boogie-woogie once in a while but from what some people say you would think I spent most of my time going from one theatre to another playing this kind of music," he said.

Chopin and Liszt are his favorite composers and his Edmonton performance tonight here was wearing brown shoes when he came to the stage for a concert.

A pianist dare not go in for stunts as Kapell limits his concert program to swimming.

His hobby is painting in oils. He believes he has a real potential for this but has never taken expert instruction.

A movie fan, he likes British films better than the Hollywood product.

KAPPELL'S MOTHER is Spanish-Irish and his mother is Polish. He started on the road to music at greatness when he came to the notice of the world celebrated pianist, Arthur Schnabel.

He finds Canadian audiences simply "wonderful."

MORE CONSERVATORIES of music are needed to stimulate interest in good music, he thinks.

"Every large Canadian and American centre should have a conservatory," he said.

Kapell went to the top hard way. His family was not wealthy and he earned his livelihood while training by being an accompanist.

His artistic plans to remain in Edmonton until March 21 before proceeding to Calgary and Vancouver.

This is his third concert tour of Canada.

THE RUSSIAN CONCERTS are his favorite selections.

MR. WHITE INTERVIEWED Thursday, said "I would certainly like to live in Canada." He spoke with enthusiasm for the "ample food, cheerful hospitality and good fellow-ship" he had found among the many friends he had formed here.

The question of food brought up the subject of delicacies, one in particular of which was the salmon, a delicacy much prized by the Japanese. The man taken from caves in Sumatra and the Malay Archipelago, are lined by a bird known as the Chinese Swift. Frequently Europe and more generally in the Far East tables laid with this toothsome rarity are considered desirable and refined, it was learned.

DURING THE DISCUSSION with Mr. White it was advanced that western people, and especially those in Alberta, would not take too easily to the life of the East. That a bird's nest, keeping in mind the general nature of those of the crow and sparrow.

Mr. White expressed the view that he was not alarmed at the present turn in international relations. "They could be better," he said. ## DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Parents Should Provide For Their Old Age

Support of Old Folks Should Not Be by the Children; Daughter Is Advised Not To Be Family Goat

DEAR MISS DIX: My father has been a man who has always made good money, but has spent it freely on his family. Now he is old and feeble, unable to continue work, and he and my mother are dependent on their children. There are three of us, but my sister feels that she cannot ask money of her husband for her parents' support. My brother offers to pay one-third when it becomes necessary. But both of them think that I should bear the burden because I am unmarried.

This means that I will have to live with my parents, and I left home because our home life was so unpleasant, for my father has a terrible temper and mother is on everybody's nerves. And, I will have to give up marriage because my father is neurotic and in ill health and would never have the ability to accept the responsibility of my family.

THE PROSPECT of never being able to buy a pretty dress for myself again, never being able to see my friends except in the presence of my old-fashioned parents, or listening to their religious views of putting up with a collection of old newspapers, buttons, pictures and even rocks with which mother fills the whole house, of listening to mother nag daddy and him storm back at her, is a ghastly future. Yet how can I evade it?

Answer: The only sensible thing for you to do is to refuse to be the family goat. Tell your brother and your sister that they are just as much obligated to support your parents as you are, and that you will chip in with your third, but that you will not assume the whole burden.

But your predicament calls attention again to the mistake that parents make in spending all their income on their children instead of laying up something for their own support in their old age.

Why Grow Old?

It is a common thing to hear parents boast that they are investing everything in their children, and that they expect their sons and daughters to repay them by supporting them when they are old. They think they are being kind to their children when they do this in an expensive way and entertain and dress their daughters beautifully and give them social advantages, or when they send their sons to high-priced colleges, because they figure that the girls will be able to make better marriages and the boys to secure more lucrative jobs.

But, in nine cases out of ten, it would have been far better for the children if the parents had saved enough of their money to make themselves independent than to become parasites upon them. For it is axiomatic that a husband wants to support his wife's parents, and it is practically never that a wife wants her husband's father and mother to come and live with them, or is willing to have his income with them.

TRACY OWEN pocketbook is a better reliance for old people than dependence on their children. DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I have been keeping company with a widow for some time and we are anxious to be married and settle down, but she has two children, a boy of 12 and a girl of 16. The boy doesn't mind, but the girl opposes her mother getting married. She tells her mother that if she continues to keep company with me, she is going to leave home, and that she will take care of her mother herself.

The mother doesn't know what to do—whether to give up the man she loves in order to keep peace in the family, or wait to marry him until the daughter gets out on her own. The question is: Does the daughter have the right to decide to her mother as to whether she should marry again, or not? What do you say?

Answer: The daughter is very foolish in trying to keep her mother from marrying a good man who loves her and who will take care of her. She is also very selfish, for she will not hesitate to leave her mother when she falls in love and wants to marry. But certainly she can make things very unpleasant for all concerned by her opposition, and I should think it would be a good idea to put off marriage for about a year in the hope that she will come to a more reasonable frame of mind.

The mother should make the girl fully understand that she is going to marry you, and that she has better look for that job that will make her self-supporting.

A. This may come from poorly-fitted shoes or from arch weakness. Q. "Will exercise help constipation?" A friend told me she overcame her trouble with exercise, do not believe it.

A. Yes, sometimes just the additional of abdominal exercise will rid one of this disability. I have been told this many times by my pupils. Q. "Do you think a girl 18 ought to wear nail polish?"

A. Yes, I think a 16-year-old girl should wear it when she is dressed up if she wants to do so. Of course, long red nails are not appropriate. Q. "MY FACE IS LONG and thin, but queerly enough, I have a short neck. How should I wear my hair?"

A. Wear it low on top and fluffed out or built up at the sides. Do wear it in a long bob. Q. "Am I too old to begin exercise?" I am 60.

A. I should say not! If you are in good health, by all means begin. However start in slowly and build up gradually. Q. "Will the application of mascara make the lashes fall out?"

A. No. However, if you fail to remove your mascara at night before going to sleep your lashes may break off. Q. "How long does it take to see a difference in the waistline if I exercise regularly every day?"

A. About two weeks. Q. "I AM ON MY FEET lot of the time. So far I haven't had any trouble with my arches but I do have a little too much weight. Should I take arch exercises?"

A. It would be good preventative medicine because standing on the feet much of the day and overweight are two of the main causes. By all means take arch exercises, and why don't you try yourself of the extra pounds?

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDERD

One of the noticeable problems of a baby's eighth and ninth months is his tendency to stop sleeping all through the night as was his habit previously.

RECENTLY it was mentioned that food had a great deal to do with this. "The nursing baby who wakes up several times is ready to be weaned. The baby on a formula may need a strengthened one or more solid foods. Obviously, he is not as satisfied at the moment as he was when he slept untroubledly from 8 p.m. to 8 a.m."

MRS. J. L. S. has a pertinent suggestion to make. She writes: "My 8-month-old daughter was waking up four or five times at night crying. By giving her a little formula of warm water she would go back to sleep again."

I know what she well. She had a formula of 14 ounces of evaporated milk, with 20 ounces of water, and two tablespoons of corn syrup, the four tablespoons of cereal twice daily, three ounces of orange juice, fruit for breakfast, custard and vegetables for lunch and cod liver oil.

I wrote you about this problem but never mailed the letter. I discovered the cause of her wakefulness and thought it might help other readers.

IT WAS UNABLE to obtain the usual brand of corn syrup to which she had been accustomed. It seems there are many types of sugar and one used as a substitute did not agree with the baby. She was always full of gas and it gave her cramps.

"When I went back to using the corn she had been used to, she began sleeping all night again. I might add that this other type of sugar made her constipated, too."

THANK YOU SO MUCH. It is possible that if you tried to use a small sugar in place of a corn syrup you did not use enough of it. If she develops constipation or wakefulness again try increasing the amount of syrup slightly.

Mrs. K. Your suggestion on this same subject made me of an advertised product. I cannot mention it in my column.

Our latest No. 12 "Formula and Early Feedings" contains formula for the child up to 12 months. It may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with this request to Myrtle Meyer Elderd in care of this newspaper.

Here is a set of beauty rules to follow when you tell your "young man" that you're ready to "just a minute". The year hair back. Spread cleaning cream over face and neck. While the cream is penetrating look over your nails, repair them. Remove the cream. Pat on a lotion, blend on powder foundation. Now powder and rouge. (Dry rouge is quicker). Groom your eyes, put on lipstick. There—you are ready!

Urges Continue Hospitality

Of the 4800 women in the three services, more than half have now been discharged and of this number 2,300 are taking advantage of vocational training, 1000 attending universities and the balance are working or seeking employment, said Dr. Olive Russell in an interview with The Edmonton Bulletin Friday morning.

Dr. Russell is executive assistant to the director general of rehabilitation, Department of Veterans Affairs, Ottawa, and is the co-director of a tour in the interests of the DVA.

At least 25 per cent of those discharged have used their rehabilitation credits or the option of their training, she continued.

In her tours of the various centres, Dr. Russell is stressing permanent employment for the ex-servicemen and as far as receiving co-operation from the DVA centres in the DVA centres and the employment commission.

DR. RUSSELL served three years with the CWAC as an army examiner and during her posting at Vermilion she was impressed with the intelligence of the girls from the various provinces. Many of the army women in this centre who were victims of the depression and who had only grade eight education and served as domestics and yet their intelligence tests were given them girls came out with very high marks. Such keenness, plus army training has enabled these women to hold various civilian positions, she said.

The human need is equally as important as the physical, the doctor said, pointing out that the citizens who did so much during the war for the servicemen and women must be helped in their efforts to rehabilitate these persons. Providing employment, clothing and shelter alone will not do this.

They must be invited into homes, they must be given a place in clubs and organizations, they must be made to feel they are needed and given a share in community responsibilities, the visitor stressed. She is conferring with representatives of vocational training and rehabilitation.

Road Ahead

has the money the government loaned to the veteran.

RUNNING YOUR OWN BUSINESS and being your own boss is just about the most attractive way in the world of making a living—when you are looking at everybody else who is doing it successfully. But running your own business—especially when you start out from scratch—is about the hardest way of making a living—and the most uncertain. It has been estimated that nine out of ten businesses which start out with initial capitalization of $5,000 or less fail in the first 12 months. This should read "Stop! Look! and Listen!" to anyone who is thinking of starting out on his own.

There is no way of predicting what business will succeed and what business will fail. Neither is there any way of being sure which individuals are capable of making a business go and which ones are not. Personality, character, knowledge, and old Lady Luck all have a hand in it—and so does the unpredictable public.

BUSINESSMEN AND BUSINESSMEN that seem to have everything necessary to make a roaring success often turn out to be helpless failures—while some crackpots who don't seem to have a brain in their head start out with an idea that convinces everybody he ought to be locked up in an institution—and the first thing you know he owns the whole town. Continual experience with these kind of affairs has sent many a bank manager to an early grave.

Actually the Canadian government hasn't been as magnanimous in this regard as it might seem. They will pay benefits while awaiting release—while some crackpots who don't seem to have a brain in their head start out with an idea that convinces everybody he ought to be locked up in an institution—and the first thing you know he

THE AVERAGE serviceman with five years' service will collect about $200 in gratuities and credit. This, of course, isn't enough to start a business. But then those who really planned it have considerable number of veterans have managed to start their own business, and some are doing very well. Others haven't been so fortunate and found out that their castle in the air dissolved into thin air in fairly short order.

Many servicemen have given up plans which they originally had of starting their own business. Reasons for this in most cases were their inability to get the financial backing required to start. Others found that they couldn't get the supplies they wanted, or a place to do business. Some became discouraged before they had completed their plans and investigations.

NOW THAT THE LESS experience has been discouraged it might be a good idea for the government to bring out its plan. The situation seems as much as it is expected to in the spring a great many men will be more interested in the security of a job than in an opportunity of starting a struggling business. Under these circumstances it should be early for the government to decide what men desire help—and the record of the first should be greatly reduced.

Quebec To Set Up Propaganda Dept. QUEBEC, March 15.—(CP)—Second reading of a government bill to set up a department of social welfare and youth, was carried by a 43-37 vote in the Quebec legislative assembly yesterday. Premier Maurice Duplessis announced without further detail that the province soon will have a department of radio, cinema, tourist and propaganda.
